

Stefania Rojas

Stefania Rojas was born in Italy, but moved to Peru at the age of one. After living in Peru for three years, she moved to the United States and lived there until she started attending her current school, John Cabot University in Rome.

Stefania had a passion for the Italian culture and language ever since she was small. After having taken Italian Culture and Italian 101 and been part of the Italian Club at her former school, Rutgers University, she decided that her life-long dream of moving to and studying in Italy could not wait any longer. In the Fall of 2013, Stefania applied to the John Cabot study abroad program and attended in Spring 2014. Having seen and experienced all the things she ever dreamt of first-hand, she did not want to go back to Rutgers and decided to transfer to John Cabot University as a degree-seeking student.

She is currently completing an internship at Nordstrom learning about the retail fashion industry and retail management. She is majoring in International Business with a Concentration in Marketing. She continues her studies of the Italian language and is taking on her fifth Italian language course. After graduating from John Cabot University, Stefania plans to work for a fashion company that allows her to do business in the United States, Italy, and Europe.