*Please note that Pace University does not endorse any of the listings below and it is your responsibility to search responsibly. The information below is meant to support your search and Pace University is not held responsible for your housing decisions. Pace University does not have the resources to investigate or certify the safety of rental properties, private or public listings, or business practices of landlords.

 Please be extremely cautious and never send money without visiting the apartment and agreeing on the lease. Housing scams and fraudulent situations can arise when dealing with online companies/brokers. International students can be targeted and scammed. If you are working through a provider or an online platform such as Airbnb, be sure to conduct your activities through the platform to ensure the listings and people are legitimate. You are not advised to negotiate outside of these platforms.

Getting Started:

- (1) Do Your Research: Which neighborhood is right for you? (See Page 6) Which subway line is most convenient? What is the average price of an apartment in this neighborhood? Learn commonly used phrases in the housing search.
- (2) Compile Your Documents: U.S. landlords may ask for proof of income, passport information, your acceptance letter to Pace University, etc. It is common for international students to pay up to three months' rent as a deposit if you do not have a guarantor.
- (3) Explore Your Options: Do you want to join an existing apartment through a roommate finder? Do you want to live in a furnished residence? Do you want to gather classmates to share an apartment and sign a lease?
- (4) Carefully Review a Lease or Contract Before Signing or Paying. Review the checklist before you sign a lease.

Where Do I Want to Live?

New York City is divided into five boroughs: Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, Staten Island, and the Bronx. New York neighborhoods can vary block by block, so don't judge a neighborhood by its reputation. It is important to visit the neighborhood during both day/night times and use good judgment when deciding.

Pace University is located in downtown Manhattan's Financial District, next to the Brooklyn Bridge and City Hall. Students who have participated in our programs in the past have recommend the following neighborhoods:

Manhattan

East Village, Financial District, Upper West Side, Upper East Side, Greenwich (West) Village, Lower East Side

Brooklyn

Brooklyn Heights, Williamsburg, Bushwick, Park Slope, Boerum Hill, Carroll Gardens, Cobble Hill, and Greenpoint

Queens

Astoria, Long Island City

New Jersey

Hoboken and Jersey City (PATH train to downtown Manhattan walking distance to Pace).

The New York City MTA subway and bus system operates in all five boroughs 24 hours a day, seven days a week and is inexpensive way to get to and from your classes. PATH trains to New Jersey and New Jersey Transit also operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Pace University is accessible via subway:

- 2 3 Take 2 or 3 Express to either Park Place Station or to Fulton St. Station.
- A C Take the A Express or C Local to Fulton St. Station.
- 4 5 6 Take the 4 or 5 Express or 6 Local to the Brooklyn Bridge/City Hall Station or Fulton St. Station.
- J Z Take the J or Z to Chambers Street Station or Fulton St. Station.
- R W Take the R or W Local to City Hall Station.

How Do I Avoid Scams?

- Verify the address is real via Google or other listing sites and ensure the apartment photos shown match the exact apartment you will rent (no magazine photos or stock photos).
- Always try to view the apartment in person if possible. Make sure the space you see is the exact apartment listed on the lease. Arrive earlier than your program start to do an apartment search.
- Do not send money in advance (wiring, cashier's check, money order, Western Union, Pay Pal, etc.). Never share your personal information or bank account information without reviewing a lease. View the apartment, submit your application materials, carefully review the lease, and then make a deposit once everything checks out.
- Research to confirm that the person trying to rent to you is legally allowed to do so. Watch out for people who claim to be landlords. If their emails have strange spelling, poor grammar and grammar, or odd capitalization, they might not be who they say they are. Their communication should be professional and prompt—ensure they have a legitimate phone number and email address, ideally with public information of their leasing history through reviews, various online housing websites, or otherwise. Meetings should take place in an office or within the apartment you'll be renting.
- Be aware of the realistic price range of an apartment in the area. If a deal is too good to be true (ex: $400/month in Manhattan), it probably is a scam.
- If renting from a private individual (someone who claims to own the complex or unit; not a broker, real estate company, or housing site), ask to be put in touch with prior tenants who can vouch for the apartment and ask about previous tenants' experiences. Legitimate landlords are usually willing to do this. Search public records online to ensure the person is the actual property owner.
- Check for cloned apartment photos and listings—do a reverse Google image search by right-clicking an image to make sure the images of the apartment listing are unique. If the same images are listed in different postings, the photos are most likely not of the actual apartment.

How Do I File a Complaint or Report Scams?

- Report a scam to the NYPD and to the Federal Trade Commission.
- Call or text 311 to report a poor housing condition. 311 is New York's main source of government information and non-emergency services. You can file a complaint online at nyc.gov/311. You might call 311 if your landlord has not helped you with the following:
 - You do not have hot water or heat.
 - You have bed bugs, rodents, mold, lighting/electrical/plumbing issues, or unsanitary and unsafe conditions.
 - Discrimination/harassment from landlord.
 - Your apartment does not have smoke and carbon monoxide detectors.
