

Model United Nations Society Charter

The John Cabot University Model United Nations Society seeks to further the mission of John Cabot University by:

- enabling students to contribute to the richness of cultural diversity
- encouraging leaders who will make positive contributions to an increasingly interdependent and multicultural world
- fostering reasoned discussion of contemporary issues
- instilling an eagerness to embrace the challenges of a more global future

Participation in Model United Nations enriches students' international outlook, in giving them an intense awareness of other countries and international issues, as well as experience in seeking feasible solutions through reasoned discussion. This work in crafting and promoting particular solutions is especially important in training future leaders in a globalized world. Students' experience in engaging with these issues, with other students from all around the world, is an important step in helping to create and develop an international community, and to embrace the challenges of a more global future.

The MUN Society is also committed to bringing international high school students to John Cabot for the annual JCU MUN conference. This is an invaluable opportunity for students to hone their organizational, diplomatic and fundraising skills, while promoting the values of MUN in Italy and beyond.
