Student Video Contest

Italy Reads is John Cabot University's community-based reading and cultural exchange program that began in 2009 with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts for The Big Read Rome.

The Big Read Rome was a great success; students from nearly 20 Italian public and international high schools in Rome read Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird, viewed the film at JCU's "Cinema Mockingbird," attended theater productions by The English Theatre of Rome, and actively participated in book discussions with JCU students.

The success of The Big Read Rome led John Cabot University to expand this American cultural exchange program to a wider Italian high school community and create our own program which we called Italy Reads. We now count 40 Italian public and international high schools and over 100 teachers of English and their students among Italy Reads participants.

We are pleased to announce that the book for Italy Reads 2014 is Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway’s A Farewell to Arms. The official edition of the book is the Vintage Classics Special Edition (ISBN 9780099582564).

Please see our Calendar of Events for a complete list of Italy Reads activities.

To register as an official Italy Reads 2014 participant, or to receive more information about Italy Reads, please e-mail us at italyreads@johncabot.edu or speak with Ms. Gina Marie Spinelli at +39-06-68191223.

Participating teachers, students, libraries and book groups can attend a Keynote Address by an expert on Hemingway and his work, watch the film adaptation of A Farewell to Arms, attend a production of the stage adaptation of the novel by The English Theatre of Rome, participate in Student Exchanges, and compete in a Student Video Contest. Participating teachers can also attend a day-long Italy Reads training workshop.

ITALY READS ACTIVITIES

• Keynote Address -- Participating teachers and their students will be invited to the Italy Reads Keynote Address delivered by an expert on Hemingway and his work. See the Calendar of Events for details.

• Master Class for High School Teachers and Book Group Leaders -- by an expert on Hemingway and his work. See the Calendar of Events for details.

Winners of Italy Reads 2014 Student Video Contest Announced

February 17, 2015 – Rome. Suspense was high at John Cabot University as students from Rome, Naples, Anzio and Pomezia anxiously awaited the announcement of this year's winners of the Italy Reads Student Video Contest.

Before viewing the 3-minute videos of the four finalists in the annual Student Video Contest, JCU President Franco Pavoncello welcomed students, teachers, parents and JCU student Italy Reads volunteers to the 5th edition of this annual film event congratulating all participants for their work.

President Pavoncello reminded students of the necessity to communicate effectively in a multicultural world, especially in a second language and with mixed media. These skills will accompany students throughout their professional and personal lives.

The Italy Reads Student Video Contest is the culmination of a series of cultural activities offered by John Cabot University through the Italy Reads program. In its 6th year, Italy Reads brings students and teachers of English and members of the local English-speaking community together to promote cultural understanding.

Italy Reads program is grateful to receive support from the Embassy of the United States of America in Italy in recognition of the opportunity for cultural exchange through the study of American literature.

Italy Reads 2014 focuses on Ernest Hemingway's A Farewell to Arms. Inspired by the novel, video entries are produced by classes in participating Italian and international high schools. This year, Italy Reads received 19 three-minute videos from students in Rome, Pomezia, Anzio and Naples. Judges, JCU faculty and professionals in their fields of video production, acting and literature, were very impressed by the quality of the work produced for this contest. They commend all participants for their striking efforts.

The winners are:

First Place Award - €500, to be used by the class as they choose, to "A Farewell To Arms", by students in Class IV–D, "The Chalkboard Group" (Professor Cinzia Cetraro), Liceo Isaac Newton, Rome. Watch the video.

One of the judges commented: In a word, this video is stunning . . . beautiful condensation of the complexities of the novel's story told in via the beautiful medium of animation. Truly a work of The students and teachers involved in making this video should be very proud of their work.

Second Place Award - €300, to be used by the class as they choose, goes to "Curiosity increaseth knowledge - The enchantment of reading", by students of Class V-C, (Professor Maria Gabriella Gatti), Liceo Scientifico Archimede, Rome. Watch the video.

One of the judges commented: A beautiful video that not only champions the importance of reading but also depicts a significant aspect of Hemingway's novel. A first rate telling of a multi-layered story in a brilliantly concise way.

Honorable Mention - "Acid rain", by students at The Swiss School of Rome (Professor Yvette Manigold). Watch the video.

One of the judges commented: Truly a great work of interpretive art. Innovative, avant garde and groundbreaking. A truly original and bold take on the novel. This video took artistic risks that paid off greatly. First rate.

Honorable Mention - "Rain", by students of Class V, Liceo Scientifico S. Anna Falletti Di Barolo, Rome (Professor Francesca Minutello). Watch the video.
One of the judges commented: A very nice adaptation of the central themes of the novel into the present. This video makes Hemingway's novel clearly relevant to students of today.

Photos on Facebook!

Over the past 6 years, more than 250 JCU students have become qualified Italy Reads Volunteers. They engaged high school students in class discussions in English, at Italian and International high schools in Rome and surrounding cities.

Italy Reads has grown from 20 to 130 teachers of English, and from 17 to 46 high schools in Rome and nearby cities. This means that approximately 2000 Italian high school students each year are joining together to read, discuss and share ideas about a selected work of American literature, all in English!

Past winners:

Italy Reads 2013 Student Video Contest Award winners are:

First Place (500 euro prize): The Namesake by students of Class 1 A, Liceo Classico at Liceo Immanuel Kant. Their teacher is Professor Alessandra Tedeschini.

The judges commented favorably on the symbolic shot of the protagonist tearing the page to represent him letting go of the past. The sound transitions, the lighting and the diverse and effective camera shots used with this video were effective.

Second Place (300 euro prize): Interview with Hyenas by students of Class 3 H, at Liceo Scientifico Statale “Innocenzo XII” in Anzio. Their teacher is Professor Fortuna Pappalardo.

The judges commented that the actors were having so much fun that their audience does as well. Students attempted to situate the novel’s themes in the context of Italian media.

Honorable Mention: Let Me Be by students of Class 3 C at Liceo Immanuel Kant, Rome. Their teacher is Professor Claudia Francesca Cacciò.

Honorable Mention for Best Acting: One Hand, Five Homes by students of Class 5E at Chris Cappell College, Anzio. Their teacher is Professor Ida Balzano.

The selection panel was impressed by the quality and variety of videos that were submitted, as well as the enthusiasm and dedication with which students worked together to reach a common goal.
John Cabot University looks forward to Italy Reads 2014 when we will be reading Ernest Hemingway’s A Farewell to Arms. For more information please contact Ms. Gina Marie Spinelli, Coordinator of the Italy Reads Program at italyreads@johncabot.edu.

Past winners of this award have used these funds to defray the cost of class instructional visits in Italy and abroad, make a donation to their school library on behalf of the class or to subsidize an end-of-year dinner together.

John Cabot University's Italy Reads Program is proud to play a role in stimulating creativity and enthusiasm in students through the study of language and literature.

Read on to find out more about Italy Reads and the Contest Rules for the Student Video Contest.

Student Video Contest

Students of participating Italy Reads teachers are encouraged to participate in the Italy Reads Student Video Contest. Students produce videos that creatively represent the themes explored in the novel and submit the videos for judging by a panel of experts. The class of the winning video will receive a prize of 500 euro! Second prize: 300 euro! Students are encouraged to produce videos that are inspired by the novel. The themes of the novel include: the harsh reality of war, love and loss, loyalty and abandonment, reality versus fantasy, self versus duty. These videos can include music videos, a dramatized scene from the novel, a documentary consideration of one of the themes of the novel, or an impressionistic video in response to one of the themes. There can be no violation of copyright in the videos. Students are encouraged to be creative and innovative in their interpretation of one of the themes in their videos. Please read the following Contest Rules. Students are very strongly encouraged to consult the document Bound By Law ©2006 Keith Aoki, James Boyle, Jennifer Jones (http://web.law.duke.edu/cspd/comics/) for more information on how to respect intellectual property rights.

Contest Rules

All students who appear in a video submitted to compete in the video contest must be from the same class at the same school. Classes are encouraged to submit multiple entries. Video recordings can be taken either using mobile telephones or video cameras. Submissions must be received by the deadline of 4:00p.m. Monday, 19 January 2015.

Video entries must be uploaded to YouTube, Facebook, Vimeo or other social network and the link sent to Italy Reads (italyreads@johncabot.edu) in an email which must include a message with: name of school, name of teacher, list of students involved in making video (both those acting and those involved in other aspects of the production), email address and contact information for person submitting the video. Participation in the Student Video Contest constitutes acceptance of the terms authorizing John Cabot University to use the video.

Download the disclaimer
Videos have a maximum 3-minute limit and must be submitted directly online by uploading them to YouTube, Facebook, Vimeo or other social network and sending the link to italyreads@johncabot.edu by the stated deadline.

The committee of judges will select the winning video based on the following criteria:

Two (2) awards, for the amount of 500 Euros and 300 Euros, will be given to the classes whose submissions have been determined to best satisfy the above-listed criteria. Honorable Mention will be given to other categories as deemed appropriate by the panel of judges. Award Winners will be announced in mid-February 2015.

Prize money must be spent on a project or activity chosen by the class as a group and approved by the Italy Reads participating teacher. The prize funds must be spent before June 2015 and a report on how the award was spent must be submitted to Italy Reads by the end of June 2015.

Italy Reads is supporting the Arts!

Winners of the Italy Reads 2012 Student Video Contest from the 9th Year and the 12th Year at St. George's British International School used their award (500 Euro total) to finance Dance and Theatre classes.

The Italy Reads 2012 Student Video Contest Award in the English language schools division, was awarded to students of the 9th year, for 'The Great Gatsby', and students of the 12th year, for 'Shadows of a Page', and their teacher Anna Madden at St. George's British International School Rome. Recognition for Best Actress went to Eleonor Carpigo from 'Shadows of a Page'.

Students of participating Italy Reads teachers are encouraged to participate in the Italy Reads Student Video Contest. Students produce 3-minute videos that creatively represent the themes explored in the novel and submit the videos for judging by a panel of experts.

Past winners of this award have used these funds to defray the cost of class instructional visits in Italy and abroad, make a donation to their school library on behalf of the class or to subsidize an end-of-year dinner together.

John Cabot University's Italy Reads Program is proud to play a role in stimulating creativity and enthusiasm in students through the study of language and literature.

Learn what Italy Reads is about!

Listen to what some of our Fall 2012 volunteers had to say about their volunteering experience.

Italy Reads welcomes student volunteers from AACUPI programs - The Italy Reads was recently illustrated to representatives from the 150 institutions of the Association of American College and University Programs in Italy. Now, students attending these other study abroad programs throughout Italy have the opportunity to register, be trained and become a John Cabot University Italy Reads Volunteer.

What is Italy Reads?

Italy Reads is John Cabot University's community-based reading and cultural exchange program that began in 2009 with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts for The Big Read Rome.

The Big Read Rome was a great success; students from nearly 20 Italian public and international high schools in Rome read Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird, viewed the film at JCU's "Cinema Mockingbird," attended theater productions by The English Theatre of Rome, and actively participated in book discussions with JCU students.

The success of The Big Read Rome led John Cabot University to expand this American cultural exchange program to a wider Italian high school community and create our own program, which we call Italy Reads.

What does a volunteer do?

Teams of JCU student volunteers visit Italian high schools to participate in discussions of the selected novel in English. During the fall semester, volunteers also assist Italian students in producing a short English-language video on the novel as part of our Italy Reads Student Video Contest. Students also help in one of the many events such as presentation of the adaptation of the novel for the stage by the English Theatre of Rome. Exchange visits often continue throughout the spring term as well.

The minimum time commitment expected is about 6 hours during the semester for a high school visit – you are always welcome to do more!

By volunteering, you become more integrated into the Italian community, have the opportunity to consider your own country and it's history from within an international context, and experience how foreigners interpret American culture. You'll meet Italians and form friendships that we hope will follow you through your life's travels. All volunteers who successfully fulfill the requirements of the program receive a certificate of recognition from John Cabot University to include on their international resumes.

How do I become an Italy Reads volunteer?

First you need to read an American novel! We are pleased to announce that the book for Italy Reads 2014 is Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway's A Farewell to Arms. The official edition of the book is the Vintage Classics Special Edition (ISBN 9780099582564).

What next? Follow these quick and easy steps:

Step 1: Fill in the registration form and sign up for the online training review.

Step 2: Read the book.

Step 3: Complete the required on-line training review, which lasts less than 3 hours. You can find the link below and you will also receive an email with instructions. Once you have completed the short training review, you're ready to volunteer! The training review is designed to familiarize you with the novel so that you can participate in cultural exchange activities with Italian high school students and their teachers during which you will discuss the novel and its author.

When you arrive in Rome, JCU will host an orientation reception for all of the Italy Read volunteers! JCU Staff will guide you along your volunteer experience and place you with a local Italian high school. At the end of your service, you will receive an official certificate of participation.
Eligibility: Italy Reads volunteers, who should be fluent in English, must be enrolled as John Cabot University students or as students of an AACUPI study abroad program. Study abroad students: you are ideal volunteers as this provides you with international service learning experience!
