UNIVERSITY

Monday, 22 June 2015, 4:30-5:30pm

Aula Magna Regina, Guarini Campus

Finalists will read a brief excerpt from their work and receive their award from Writer in Residence Edmund White.

Italy Writes is John Cabot University's national English-language writing competition for Italian high school students that includes on its panel of judges professors from one of America's most highly-ranked creative writing centers: the University of Iowa's International Writing Program.

Italy Writes engages high school students in the development of their English creative-writing skills and is open to all students enrolled in Italian high schools that do not have English as the primary language of instruction.
