John Cabot University, Rome, Italy

Program Dates: July 8-12, 2019

What to expect from this APSI

This weeklong AP* Summer Institute is a unique opportunity for attendees to develop effective teaching strategies for the AP® Art History course in the inspiring context of the Eternal City. The Institute will offer AP* Art History teachers a combination of on-site learning – Rome is home to 18 of the 250 images in the new AP* Art History Curriculum Framework – and classroom sessions. In addition to private guided tours and visits to specific architectural venues featured in course, teachers will visit other related works that support a deeper understanding of contextual issues related to the western tradition. They will also acquire new techniques to support students understanding in both the western and global content of the recently redesigned AP* Art History Course. Classroom activities will include presentations on organizing the content of the course, pacing, assessment strategies, and teaching contextual and formal analysis. Support materials including digital handout will be given to participants who will have access to computer lab. A guest lectures by JCU Art History faculty, will also be part of the week.
