

TESTIMONIAL

Fall 2019

JCU Center for Career Services

My name is Ignacio Moreno, I am a sophomore double majoring in International Affairs and Business Administration at JCU. Being passionate about politics and the world of International Relations, I soon realized I would need experience in the field. Therefore I decided to look for an internship, and, with the help of the JCU Center for Career Services, I got the opportunity to work with IPS (Inter Press Service).

IPS is a global news agency and, at the beginning, I was not sure that it was the best fit for my profile. However, I found out that IPS is the official partner of the Food and Agriculture Organization and the official news outlet of different NGOs and governments around the globe. This internship not only allowed me to work in my field but also to learn essential skills, such as time management and research.

As Search Engine Optimization and Research Intern, I analyzed and summarized a variety of political contemporary articles, looked for potential partners and NGOs, and helped with the implementation of the organization's online presence.

Working at IPS was undoubtedly one of the best decisions of my life, and it gave me the insight I was looking for, in the field I love. I would recommend this internship to any student that is passionate about International Relations and to those who want to gain and apply different skills that are connected to fields such as Communications, Journalism and Political Science.
